Highlights

- The bill eliminates a provision that requires an applicant to change residence in order to be eligible for the Address Confidentiality Program, known as the Safe at Home Program. This could expand the number of applicants for the program. The Secretary of State pays for the costs of Safe at Home through the Address Confidentiality Fund (Fund 5SN0).
- The bill makes several changes related to the acquisition or disposition of real property, and the ability of local officials to access real property records of individuals in the Address Confidentiality Program. These provisions could result in some cost increases to political subdivisions.

Detailed Analysis

The bill makes numerous changes to the Address Confidentiality Program, which is managed by the Secretary of State (SOS) and commonly referred to as the Safe at Home Program. Overall, these changes appear to result in minimal cost increases to the Secretary of State and to political subdivisions. Most notably, the bill removes a requirement that an applicant for the program be changing residence in order to be eligible for the program. Eliminating this requirement could potentially make more individuals eligible for the program. However, any additional applicants that would be eligible to participate in the program as a result of this change in qualifying criteria would be small. Safe at Home is paid from the Address Confidentiality Fund (Fund 5SN0). The fund was initially capitalized through a transfer of $50,000 from the Business Services Fund (Fund 5990) and receives periodic annual transfers of up to that amount. Ongoing revenue comes from court fines and penalties imposed for certain offenses. These sources of revenue amounted to approximately $13,000 in FY 2019. The SOS spent nearly $39,000 administering the program in that fiscal year.

Additionally, the bill modifies the program as it relates to real property acquisition or disposition. The bill establishes procedures for individuals in the program who wish to purchase real property to submit notice to the county recorder and local authorities to maintain confidentiality. The bill also establishes procedures for the disposition of property by court order in which the property no longer remains in the Address Confidentiality Program. In addition, the bill establishes provisions by which chief legal officers of political subdivisions may view confidential records. These procedures are likely to be used infrequently. If that is the case, they would only impose minimal cost increases for the jurisdictions responsible.
