The bill could result in indirect impacts to state and local government entities. The bill permits a business that has been required to cease or limit operations by certain orders, rules, or regulations of the Ohio Department of Health (ODH) or a local board of health, to continue or resume operations if certain conditions are met. For example, allowing these businesses to continue operations could result in additional costs if boards of health need to ensure compliance or if boards receive additional complaints that require investigation or the need to provide technical assistance to impacted businesses.

The bill also declares an emergency, so any fiscal impacts could be realized immediately upon enactment.
