CONTENT AND OPERATION

Background

Under continuing law, the General Assembly expressly encourages the display of the POW/MIA flag during normal business hours at each public building. "Public building" means the principal municipal building of each municipal corporation, the principal county building in the county seat of each county, and the Ohio Statehouse in Columbus.¹ The bill, designated as the POW/MIA Remembrance Act, augments noncompulsory existing law by requiring the flag to be displayed on certain days at certain specified buildings.

The bill requires that the POW/MIA flag be displayed, according to recognized rules and customs, at buildings operated by the state government on all of the following days:²

- (4) July 4, known as Independence Day;
- (5) The third Friday in September, known as National POW/MIA Recognition Day;
- (6) November 11, known as Veterans' Day.

The bill specifies the following facilities as buildings operated by the state government, and therefore subject to the bill's provisions:³

- (1) The building at 25 South Front Street, Columbus;
- (2) The building at 4200 Surface Road, Columbus;
- (3) The Frank J. Lausche State Office Building in Cleveland;

² R.C. 9.50(C).

³ R.C. 9.50(D).

(11) Buildings at transportation facilities operated by the Department of Transportation (under the bill, "transportation facilities" means all publicly owned modes and means of transporting people and goods, including the physical facilities, garages, district offices, and other related buildings, and including, highways, rights-of-way, roads and bridges, parking facilities, aviation facilities, port facilities, rail facilities, public transportation facilities, rest areas, and roadside parks);⁴

(12) The Ohio Statehouse in Columbus; and

(13) State Highway Patrol posts.

Any building included above that does not have an installed flag pole on the bill's effective date is exempt from the bill. Also, the bill specifies that compliance with the bill's requirements may occur by starting the flag display during normal business hours on a workday before the required display day, and ending the display during normal business hours on a workday following the required display day.⁵
