SUMMARY

- Requires all county and municipal correctional facilities and state correctional institutions to provide deaf, hard of hearing, or severely speech impaired inmates access to teletypewriters at no cost.
- Prohibits all county and municipal correctional facilities and state correctional institutions from denying an inmate who is deaf, hard of hearing, or severely speech impaired access to a teletypewriter.

DETAILED ANALYSIS

Providing access to teletypewriters.

The bill requires that each county and municipal correctional facility and state correctional institution provide every inmate who is deaf, hard of hearing, or severely speech impaired access to a teletypewriter at no cost to the inmate.¹ The bill defines “county correctional facility,” “municipal correctional facility,” “state correctional institution,” and “teletypewriter” or “TTY” for purposes of its provisions (see “Definitions” below).

The bill prohibits each county and municipal correctional facility and each state correctional institution from denying an inmate who is deaf, hard of hearing, or severely speech impaired access to a teletypewriter.²

Definitions

As used in the bill:
