Local Fiscal Highlights

- The bill changes the term of office of a joint vocational school district (JVSD) board member to one year, if that member is appointed on a rotating basis by members of the board when there is an even number of member districts under a plan on file with the Department of Education. This requirement may increase the administrative burden of certain JVSD boards; however, any costs are not expected to exceed minimal.

Detailed Fiscal Analysis

The bill provides that the term of office for a specific type of joint vocational school district (JVSD) board member be for one year, instead of three as required under current law. This term applies in the case of a JVSD board to which both of the following apply: (1) the JVSD board has an even number of member districts and (2) the JVSD board has a plan on file with the Department of Education that provides for an additional member to be appointed on a rotating basis by one of the appointing boards. This requirement may increase the administrative burden of certain JVSD boards; however, any costs are not expected to exceed minimal.
